Our common desire is peace, peace and peace. Our vision, like that of our inspiratory, peace activist Abdulkadir Yahya (Yahya/Sharafle), and the movement he spearheaded, is to contribute to the creation of a peaceful society that pursues social justice for all.

"The youth have the future" goes a well-known saying. But is that really so?

Take action:
join our Peace Tribe!

As a member of the Peace Tribe, you support and endorse our mission and core objectives, namely; the right to education for all children and the fundamental equality of all Somalis.

Together, we are going to answer our children's demand for education.

Somalia, has been embroiled in war for more than thirty years. As a result, an entire generation has not been able to properly develop, emotionally, socially and intellectually. Only one in five children goes to school, and if your parents don't have the money for an expensive private school, you certainly don't stand a chance.

This must change.

YPF believes that the Somali youth indeed are the future of the country, which is why we want to invest in our children.

We want to give them access to quality education. This will enable them to learn to think critically, to gain hope for a better future and to learn that violence is not the solution to our problems. By letting them go to school, we want to give children their due voice in the creation of a new Somalia.

The philosophy of YPF is that we can only achieve meaningful and lasting peace when we invest in the most vulnerable people first. Therefore, we will prioritize orphans, disabled children and members of minority communities.
